COMMENT OF THE DAY

Voting Tomorrow

TOMORROW is voting day. The content is admittedly only a by-election and there has been comparatively little electioneering but the customary exhortation is made to voters not to neglect their civic responsibilities. The fact that there is less at stake in this election than in a full contest is immaterial; apathy there may be but the voter's duty is clear.

Bishop Hall earlier this year drew attention to the poor turn-out in the March elections. He deplored the fact that only 7,000 out of 19,000 on the electoral rolls went to the polls. This figure was even worse than last year's. Then 6,000 out of about 14,500 voted.

For the public one of the main points of interest in the current election is whether the Civic Association's success at the last poll can be repeated. Mr. Bernaschi (Reform) was, however, elected at the last contest with the second highest number of votes, preceded by one and followed by two Civic candidates. THE policies of both groups are now familiar to the electorate but the content will possibly go to the candidate whose party has mobilised most support. This leads observers to the conclusion that mainly hard core voters will take part. The danger that the poll may be limited to party stalwarts is indeed the reason for this appeal.

The fact that opinion in Hongkong is decisively against any major constitutional changes is no excuse for negligence at election time. The free vote is something to be valued. In Hongkong it tends to be ignored because people can't be bothered. This attitude can only be deplored.

Out Of The Wood?

FRANCE appears to have escaped from its latest crisis fairly lightly. Prior to the election of M. Mollet, government defeats came to be regarded almost as a routine procedure but their debilitating effect upon the nation cannot be underestimated. The psychological impact of successive crises upon the French people was profound and widespread disillusionment resulted. Algeria, which has been one of the dominant questions, has undoubtedly suffered from the varying pressures which resulted from political instability at home. The latest candidate for the Premiership is a young radical, M. Maurice Bourges-Maunoury who was Minister for Defence in the Mollet cabinet. Again the Cabinet's support will come largely from the centre-left including Socialists and Radicals. One agency described the prospective grouping this way: "It will be a minority government resting on an extremely narrow parliamentary base".

YET M. Maunoury is expected to win support when he submits his programme to the National Assembly tomorrow. He is planning an "English-style" cabinet which, it is said, may number no more than 14 ministers. This cannot be expected to assure the Premier-designate of very much greater stability than his predecessors however. The programme to be placed before the Assembly includes a four-year economic plan which is intended to give France greater financial stability, maintenance of the military campaign in Algeria and ratification of the European common market and Euxatone treaties before the summer recess.

In view of the somewhat tentative support offered by some groups it is very hard to visualise a more positive or ambitious policy. Western Europe will wish M. Maunoury well in the precarious balancing act he proposes to undertake.

EISENHOWER Eats First Semi-Solid Food

Washington, June 10.

A bulletin at 6.30 p.m. (2230 GMT) said President Eisenhower ate his first semi-solid food since his illness at 5 p.m. today.

He ate some milk toast and was to receive chicken broth and more milk toast later in the evening.

Although the President remained in bed all day today, the White House said it was expected he would be allowed to get up tomorrow.

Earlier the White House had announced that the President had spent the day in bed with a stomach upset after eating something which disagreed with him.

Mr. James Hagerty, the White House Press Secretary, said it was the present expectation that the President would be back in his office on Wednesday.

The text of an earlier medical bulletin was: "The President is making a good recovery from his mild stomach upset."

RETAINING LIQUIDS
"He has slept most of the afternoon without sedation or medication. He is now taking and retaining liquids by mouth."

"His pulse, temperature, respiration and blood pressure continue to be normal. The electrocardiogram showed no change and he has had no cardiac symptoms."

"On the recommendation of the doctors, the President's engagements for tomorrow have been cancelled to permit the President to complete his recovery."

Mr. Hagerty said the doctors had found no signs of poisoning. — United Press & Reuters.

EUROPEANS RIOT IN ALGIERS

Algiers, June 10.

Rioting European residents attacked Moslems in the streets of Algiers tonight following an unprecedented wave of rebel bomb attacks.

Police and troops subdued the rioters after a wild two-hour battle with clubs, sticks and rifle butts.

An estimated 15 Moslems were wounded, which ran through the streets of Algiers shouting "Algeria is French," led by young waving veterans and students.

Twenty Europeans were injured. Authorities took 12 rioters into custody.

A rebel grenade exploded in a crowded Constantine Street tonight, killing a 17-year-old girl and wounding 17 others.

The grenade sent shrapnel ripping through the crowds on Rue Caraman in the centre of the city at 6.15 p.m.

Among the wounded were five children under 15 years old, the police reported. — United Press.

Empire Fowey Quarantined

Durban, June 10.

Port authorities quarantined the troopship Empire Fowey for several hours today when it arrived from the influenza-stricken Far East.

The quarantine was lifted after medical officers certified that several servicemen stricken by flu during the voyage had recovered.

The Empire Fowey, 10,000 tons, was the first troopship to call at Durban since the Asian outbreak of flu. — United Press.

LEBANON SMASHES PRO-NASSER RIOTS

Eight supporters of Egypt's President Nasser were shot dead Thursday week when they tried to start a revolt in Lebanon. Many persons were injured, most of them believed to be Palestinian refugees from southern Lebanon. The trouble was started by a 7 a.m. march in Beirut led by Nationalist spokesman Saeb Salam. Rioting started — and Government troops found themselves returning the fire directed at them from rooftops and windows. The revolt was quickly squashed.

Death Row Author Gets New Hearing

Washington, June 10.

The US Supreme Court today ordered a new hearing for Caryl Chessman, the convict under death sentence in California, who became a best-selling author.

Chessman, who wrote and published "Cell 2455 Death Row" and "Trial by Ordeal," has been waging a nine-year legal battle to escape San Quentin Prison's gas chamber.

He was banned from further literary activity although he had completed the manuscript of a third book, "The Face of Justice."

THREE DISSENTED

Three justices dissented from the five-man majority for the new hearing and one disqualified himself.

Justice John Harlan said for the majority that the California Supreme Court's affirmation of Chessman's conviction "upon the seriously disputed record, whose accuracy the petitioner (Chessman) has had no voice in determining, cannot be allowed to stand."

He wrote: "Without blinking the fact that the history of this case presents a sorry chapter in the annals of delays in the administration of criminal justice, we cannot allow that circumstance to deter us from withholding relief so clearly called for." — Chicago Mail Special.

French Radical's Cabinet Chances Good

Paris, June 10.

Political observers said that M. Maurice Bourges-Maunoury, the Radical leader today named by President Rene Coty of France as Prime Minister-designate, appeared to have a good chance of securing a majority in Parliament.

But his failure to obtain the participation of the Popular Republican (Catholic) Party and continued reserves in the Assembly over Algeria and finances did not bode well for the strength and stability of his coalition.

The Mollet Government — in which M. Bourges-Maunoury was Defence Minister — lasted nearly 18 months — the longest lived since the war — until it was overthrown by a Conservative revolt on financial measures.

Urgent action to raise new taxes and ease France's financial difficulties will be a first priority for the new government. The official nomination of M. Bourges-Maunoury as Prime Minister-designate — on the 20th day of the present

French political crisis — means that he considers he has overcome the major difficulties in cabinet-making.

The 42-year-old Radical, a wartime resistance hero who was wounded 13 times, is planning a "British-style" cabinet with a restricted number of senior ministers and a larger number of junior ministers, or secretaries of state, some of whom may not be appointed until after investigation.

This was considered by political observers as sound parliamentary tactics by M. Bourges-Maunoury, as he still has to overcome hesitations among some groups, notably the Near-Radicals, about joining his coalition government with the Socialists and Radicals. — China Mail Special.

OLD SEA MYSTERY MAY BE SOLVED

1909 WARATAH DISASTER

DISCOVERY of a section of corroded iron plate from the bottom of the sea raised hopes today for the solution of the 48-year-old mystery of the steamer Waratah.

The 16,500-ton Waratah disappeared without a trace after leaving Durban on July 27, 1909 and her loss is still considered one of the great unsolved mysteries of the sea. The plate was hauled up from the sea bed off the mouth of the Umzimvubu River, 90 miles south of Durban, by a fishing boat.

ST LAURENT DEALT HEAVY BLOWS IN ELECTIONS

Montreal, June 10.

The Liberal government of Mr. Louis St. Laurent, in power for 22 years, suffered serious blows in Eastern Canada tonight and first returns from Western Canada indicated mixed anti-Liberal results in Canada's national General Election.

Mr. John Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservative Party defeated the Liberal Minister, Mr. Milton Gregg, in his constituency of York-Sunbury, New Brunswick, and upset two Parliamentary assistants — Mr. J. Watson Macnaught, Fisheries side in Prince Edward Island, and Mr. John Dickey, assistant to the Trade Minister, Mr. C. D. Howe, in Halifax.

The Conservatives took all four seats in Prince Edward Island. They had held one in the last Parliament.

They elected five members in the 10 ridings of New Brunswick. They elected 10 to the Liberals' two in Nova Scotia, with two in doubt.

Youthful Engineer

The Public Works Minister, Mr. Robert Winters, youthful engineer who was widely regarded as a stalwart in the St. Laurent Cabinet, was defeated in Queen's Lunenburg, Nova Scotia.

The Finance Minister, Mr. Walter Harris, looked upon as a contender for the Liberal Party leadership on the retirement of Mr. St. Laurent, now 75, was defeated in Grey South. He was the Government's floor leader in the House of Commons.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Louis St. Laurent, was re-elected in his own riding of Quebec East.

Conservatives Robert McCreagh and Edmund Morris called a stunning upset in the dual constituency of Halifax by ousting Liberals John Dickey and Sam Balcom.

Mr. Dickey had held his seat since 1947 and Mr. Balcom his since 1950. — United Press.

FROGMAN NOT YET IDENTIFIED

Portsmouth, June 10.

Pathologists examined the body of Britain's mysterious "headless frogman" today to see if he died by accident or violence.

The decomposed body, found in nearby Chichester harbour yesterday, was believed to be that of former Navy frogman Commander Lionel Crabbe who vanished here 14 months ago while diving near a visiting Russian cruiser.

The body still wore frogman's wear. The Admiralty said Crabbe is the only frogman known to be missing.

But police, coroner's officials and the Admiralty refused to say yet if it was definitely Crabbe.

Working in secret, doctors studied the remains on the chance there might be some indication whether an underwater accident or more ominously, violence had caused the frogman's death. — United Press.

ITALIAN CABINET RESIGNS

Rome, June 10.

Premier Adone Zolli's short-lived government resigned tonight in the delayed-action aftermath of a miscounted confidence vote in the Chamber of Deputies.

The 69-year-old Premier handed the resignation of his all-Christian Democrat Cabinet to President Giovanni Gronchi immediately after an emergency Cabinet meeting took the decision.

An announcement from the President's Quirinal Palace said Gronchi "reserved" his acceptance of the resignation — the standard protocol form which in essence means the resignation was accepted.

President Gronchi asked Zolli to stay in power as "caretaker" Premier until the new crisis is solved.

CUSTOMARY ROUND
The President's office also announced that Gronchi will start the customary round of political consultations with political leaders tomorrow afternoon.

The big decision facing the Chief of State was whether to call parliamentary elections this autumn, eight months ahead of schedule, or to ask another Christian Democrat to form a non-political government to look after the nation's affairs until the elections fall due next June.

Earlier today the President of the Board of Parliament's Lower House confirmed the they but failed slip-up in the counting of the confidence vote which approved Zolli's government just after midnight on Saturday morning.

The minority government had only one day to savour its victory. By Saturday evening details of the miscount were out and 69-year-old Zolli was in a politically untenable position. — United Press.

Inche Iman Bin Puhah, a Malay fisherman was described by his eldest son aged 67 as a deeply religious man who never smoked and forbade the village children to whistle modern songs. He said they were evil.

Windsor, June 10.

The Duke of Edinburgh today celebrated his 36th birthday quietly at Windsor Castle with the Queen, their two children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, and his mother.

LONDON HOUSEWIVES WORK A 63-HOUR WEEK

... But Have An Easier Time Than Grandma

London, June 10. London housewives work a 63-hour week yet they still have an easier time than their grandmothers.

That is the conclusion reached in a report on 1,400 housewives here by Mass Observation, a leading public survey organisation.

The report gave the answer to those husbands who wonder what their wives find to do all day.

It said that the average wife spent nine hours a day — including weekends — on housework plus another five on leisure, some of which they used for personal toilet.

But it declared: "Most women, even if they work as long a day, almost certainly lead less arduous lives than their grandmothers did."

"On average they have smaller families to look after, more 'aids' to housekeeping, more choice in food in most price ranges, a wide range of leisure activities and so on."

The report also noted: "It seems possible that the now popular picture of the housewife — marly, social and psychological, as well as economic pressures."

But it said although the woman's day might look muddled and wasteful, it was rarely considered that she might like it this way.

How does the housewife split up her day?

Only 17 per cent admitted to taking a morning tea break. Only one woman in five admitted to "at least 15 minutes per day, chatting, usually to their husbands, at night before going to bed, sometimes to neighbours or friends who dropped in for a cup of tea."

Of the house work, four hours a day are spent preparing, cooking and eating meals. But the average time spent in washing them up was just over half an hour.

The time spent on personal toilet, included in the housewives' five hours of leisure, varied from day to day, but it took longer on Saturdays and Sundays. The time actually spent varied between half an hour and three quarters of an hour. — China Mail Special.

ORIENTAL FLU EPIDEMIC EXPECTED TO HIT U.S.

Vaccine For American Troops Overseas

New York, June 10. Dr George K. Hirst, director of New York's Public Health Research Institute, said today it was "reasonable to assume" that the oriental flu epidemic will spread to the United States and might reach epidemic proportions.

Hirst said the Far Eastern virus was a mutant form of the more common influenza virus, and for that reason very few persons have a natural immunity to it. Under these conditions, he said, the disease could spread "very rapidly."

MAYFLOWER DRIFTING BACKWARDS

Plymouth, Mass., June 10. The becalmed Mayflower II drifted backward five miles, on her course today because of diminishing wind.

The 92-foot square rigger, replica of the Mayflower in which the pilgrims sailed to America 337 years ago, was reported becalmed 65 miles west-southwest of Nantucket Lightship.

The skipper, Alan Villiers, reported that he was unable to estimate arrival time. However, the best guess was that the Mayflower would arrive here on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Mayflower today marked her 51st day at sea, making her an odds-on favourite to beat the 68-day crossing time required by the early Pilgrim ship.

The 180-ton vessel yesterday plunged and pitched in the roughest seas yet encountered in the 3,500-mile voyage. The ship was tossed by breaking waves, and lumbered slowly ahead.

Villiers earlier had reported that he had been forced to furl his canvas against gale winds, causing him to lose an estimated ten hours.

A Coast Guard spokesman said that, "unless the wind kicks up considerably, Mayflower would drift offshore indefinitely. He said it would take a 'stiff breeze' to drive the 180-ton vessel through the Nantucket shoal waters." — United Press.

PLAGUE CANCELS LEAVE

Cairo, June 10. The Egyptian Agriculture Ministry has cancelled all personnel leaves so staffs can combat a cotton worm plague now spreading across Egypt.

The Ministry in a communiqué said the destructive worm was increasing daily and has continued to spread for some time.

The Ministry appealed to peasants to co-operate with the government and mobilise all personnel to fight the plague. — United Press.

CROWDS DAMAGE EXHIBITS

Poznan, June 10. Fifty thousand Poznaners crowded into the Poznan Trade Fair when it opened to the general public today — and the press was so heavy in the United States Pavilion that glass door panels were smashed and staircase bannisters broken.

The damage was quickly repaired and the crowds thronged through the pavilion, where the greatest attraction was a one-family bungalow priced at $16,000 (about $2,500 sterling).

Among other American goods on show in the nylon-domed pavilion were deep-freeze foods.

Some 29 nations are exhibiting at the fair, with the British, Soviet and American pavilions the most popular with the crowds. The number of Western exhibitors is double that of last year.

Among British exhibits is a complete television studio and one gay splash of colour is provided by India's gay display of rich sari materials.

The fair will be open until June 23 and will thus avoid the June 23 anniversary of the outbreak of the tragic Poznan riots during last year's fair. — China Mail Special.

GUIDED MISSILES FOR GREENLAND

Copenhagen, June 10. The Danish evening newspaper reported today that American scientists will in the coming winter study the possibilities of establishing bases for guided missiles in North Greenland.

The newspaper said that, according to a secret agreement between the Danish and American authorities, about 20 American Arctic scientists will spend the coming winter at the Danish weather station Nord.

It said the Americans wished to examine the possibilities of establishing an airbase in the eastern part of North Greenland. — China Mail Special.

★ The story of an ordinary sightseer's extraordinary trip behind the Iron Curtain

by Anne Sharpley

TO RUSSIA

Vladimir becomes my friend

VLADIMIR — his American accent was perfect.

I AWOKED on the over-night train from Leningrad to Moscow and found that two of the three men with whom I was assigned a share of a sleeping compartment were absent. They were tuning up the old wood-stove at the end of the corridor to make tea.

They were Australians, and Australians can produce tea where there is no water, fire, or even a tea leaf for miles. Thank goodness.

But the third male, Vladimir, interpreter to the group, was still asleep. Vladimir was a good-looking friendly boy with hair standing up on his head like tough, blond moorland grass, and Asiatic blue eyes that looked as though he were wearing diamond-shaped contact lenses.

The astonishing thing about Vladimir was his accent.

It was faultless American—so much so that Americans take him to be one of them. But he had never been to America. He learned the language from tape recordings.

Sense of humour

Vladimir could also sing more George Formby songs than I have ever heard—right through, and with an equally convincing Lancashire accent.

Altogether Vladimir was quite a character. He had a splendid sense of humour. By his side as he slept was the book of American jokes he had been reading (roaring with laughter) the night before. I was not quite sure about Vladimir. He seemed too good to be true for a Russian.

And he was equally suspicious of me. I was one of those phoney Western women who could not do anything except giggle and wear too much make-up.

But we were to end up liking and trusting one another.

Vladimir woke up and soon Moscow's seven new but strangely old-fashioned skyscrapers came over the horizon. They all seemed to have something like the Albert Memorial stuck on top of them.

Stalin? Nowhere

Moscow was covered in blood-red flags and slogans for the May Day parade next day. Women were strolling in brown point on fulling with mops and the grey political faces on boardings looked down everywhere like a colossal stamp collection.

Stalin, however, was nowhere to be seen except at our hotel where there were two pictures of him.

The May Day parade in the Red Square is not the jolly free-show-for-all I had supposed. Unless you have all the right documents to get you a place, you have to make do with the noise. It is strictly for the elite and certain foreigners.

Tough cordons surrounded the area and even adjoining squares and streets were kept as clear sweep of the proletariat as a commissar's desk of stock exchange lists.

The rest of our party had tickets, so I thought I was going too. I was actually led across to the police barrier by Vladimir, only to be told I could go no farther.

Tactics failed

Why? I had made my application too late, they said.

Later I learned that I was taken to the barrier so that I could be pointed out to the police as someone positively NOT to be allowed through.

"You can see some of the parade from the hotel," But the photograph the military bandmen insisted I should be allowed to take the window must be kept closed for the military part," Vladimir told me.

As hotel rooms in Russia tend to smell of Stockholm tar, faded scent and perspiration, this idea was rather unappealing to me. I drifted away with a vague idea of coming back to wangle myself through the barrier.

Even my best tactics failed, so finally I had to settle for a bit of the pavement outside the hotel where a few pass-holders were standing. Other guests (crashers (Russians) were being sent back but I somehow got worked into the landscape. After a few attempts by the police to get me into the hotel, they gave up trying.

I stood next to a military band waiting to join the parade. They all smiled at me. They flirted so charmingly that I decided to take a picture of them.

At once a large militiaman pounced on my camera. The band roared in protest. What they said to him must have been so effective that I was allowed to take their pictures, and later, when I actually took a shot of a tracked troop carrier, the militiaman did not make a murmur.

When the tanks and equipment roared up the hill into Red Square through a cloud of blue exhaust, I forbore to take pictures for decency's sake, although there were several old familiar types of equipment that I recognised from my visit last year to the Middle East trouble spots. Now they seemed almost like old friends.

The swan-necked jet bombers roared over, splashing us with their shadows. Then a slow, morose-looking shuffle of people awkwardly holding gaudy paper flowers, balloons, and banners, began to work their way into Red Square.

These were the peace demonstrators—delegates from unions, factories and so on. It was claimed that there were well over a million of them. For three hours they went on and on.

Some made little efforts at gaiety. One vodka-happy lad dragged me into the procession. But I got yanked out again 50 yards farther on.

A Union Jack

I returned to the hotel to find some of my fellow tourists already back from Red Square. They were in one of the rooms, flying a Union Jack out of the window. This got amazed stares from the crowd below. Finally it raised an odd cheer.

As I looked out at that everlasting stream of heads, their red banners streaked to flame by the sun and wind, I was realising at last the scale and strength of Russia. And there was something about the massive dullness and slowness of it all that depressed me deeply.

Vladimir who had joined us by then saw this in my expression as we walked down the hotel corridor together. We suddenly stopped and began to talk, both at once, wild with words.

I leaned against a doorpost while we argued furiously all afternoon and into the evening. Vladimir, the special student of American, had in his studies become incalculated with the West, whether he realised it or not.

So much of what he said showed a yearning for Western ideas, as did so many of the younger people I spoke to, and yet he is a Communist patriot.

He described what happened when, on a holiday trip to Finland this year, a rare privilege for a Russian, he went to see James Dean in "East of Eden."

"I ran to my friends and said, 'this is individualism.' And they looked at me and said: 'We're glad you told us. We don't want to see it.'"

Poor Vladimir had only done what everyone else had done—and gone overboard for Dean—but this was the forbidden fruit of individualism.

Next day he took me for a walk round Moscow but we were almost unbearably brittle with one another. He steered me only through the best streets. When I wanted to go inside a magnificently decaying old church in which people appeared to be living, he grew querulous.

The only dog

Suddenly I had become an irritating Westerner again, asking silly and slightly insulting questions. Even the pleasure I showed when I met a dechshund called Dolly (the only dog I saw in all Moscow) was taken as a criticism, I felt.

Sadly I was beginning to get the measure of the extraordinary sensitivity of the Russians where anything that reflects the least discredit on them is concerned.

Nevertheless I determined to try to get the other picture of Russia—the side that tourists never see.

But while I was with Vladimir I liked him far too much to hurt him by trying.

was the obvious course. Baldwin agreed, and then, at the last moment, asked Halifax to delay the announcement. Halifax thought it was too late for delay and made his announcement.

The result was an almighty row in the House of Commons which largely undid the good work. Halifax had been able to foresee the objections which would be made, and he had primed Baldwin with all the appropriate arguments.

What he had not reckoned with was the simple and stubborn pride of possession which animated the back-bench M.P. and which the ordinary M.P. could not see for what it was.

Still, he left India to the cheers of the multitudes, and even those who hated the British most were never able to muster any feeling of animosity towards him.

On his return, he rested improbably, for a time in the Ministry of Education, introducing useful if minor reforms, bringing order into a place of some chaos and making himself felt in the Cabinet.

For a time he was virtually deputy Prime Minister. Then came Eden's resignation in the bitter pre-Munich days and Halifax took over the Foreign Office in its darkest hour.

He is frank now, as he was then, over Munich. He did not—as Chamberlain tried so hard to do—regard Munich as a great triumph. He saw it as a terrible thing.

But from his position of utter detachment it seemed a necessary thing.

He believed that to go to war in 1938 would have been to forfeit the support of much of the Commonwealth and perhaps of much of Europe as well.

He also believed, after a long and careful assessment of Britain's war potential, that war then would have been a disaster.

The "phony war" came and passed and Halifax was one of those who recognised that a National Government was essential and that the Labour Party could never join it under Chamberlain. Chamberlain summoned Halifax and Churchill and told them that one of them must take over. Halifax did not doubt that it had to be Churchill.

Politically Withdrawal

A year later, Churchill persuaded him to leave the Foreign Office and go to Washington. The reason for the choice seems, in retrospect, clear enough.

In those confused days, when it was all too easy to be simply angry with the Americans for leaving Britain to her fate, Halifax was the one man who could be relied upon to see the American point of view and to present his case with the requisite tact.

He and Roosevelt immediately became close friends and almost working partners in Roosevelt's long and sometimes stumbling campaign to get effective aid to Britain. He was a success from his first day to his last.

In 1945, he came home and Churchill wanted him to plunge back into the maelstrom of party politics. Halifax refused on the simple ground that, as Ambassador, he had been the servant for more than a year of Ernest Bevin and the Labour Government. It would not, in his view, have been proper for him to change suddenly, as that government's critic.

Instead, he spent much of his time in Oxford where he had been Chancellor of the University since 1933.

WEST INDIANS BEAT GLAMORGAN WITH A DAY TO SPARE

ANCIENT ARCHIE WANTS TO FIGHT 'SUGAR' RAY

Mannheim, Germany, June 10. The Light-Heavyweight Champion, Archie Moore, said tonight he would negotiate for the defence of his title against Sugar Ray Robinson in a match promoted by the screen star, Frank Sinatra, and his associates.

The ancient Archie plans to return to the US on Monday to begin negotiations "in person" on his title-defending match.

"Frankie (Sinatra) and his associates will come from California to meet me in New York and we go over the project along with my manager, Charley Johnston," said Moore.

Last Monday, Moore's representative, Baron von Stummme, had confirmed earlier reports that the champ had received an offer to defend his title against Sugar Ray for a guaranteed fight purse of $200,000 at Los Angeles "in the near future".

Moore added that he "probably" would fight Tony Anthony for the title too.

Anthony's manager, Eric Bracen, last Friday offered a $100,000 guarantee for Moore to make a title defence next month at Los Angeles.

Moore was suspended by the NBA last Friday for failing to return home to defend his title. The NBA also threatened to vacate the title if he should fail to defend it by July 7.

"I plan to first fight Robinson—I am of course interested to make money—and after that Anthony," said the Champion.

Ramadhin Takes Six Wickets For 39

Cardiff, June 10.

Sonny Ramadhin spun the West Indies to victory over Glamorgan here today, taking six second innings wickets for 39 runs to bring his match figures to eleven for 70.

The West Indies won by five wickets with a day to spare, scores were:—Glamorgan 138 and 77, West Indies 119 and 100 for five.

After the West Indies had been dismissed for their lowest total of the tour, Ramadhin routed Glamorgan to put the tourists on top again.

His disguised spin and variations of pace always had the batsmen guessing, and he was responsible for a collapse in which Glamorgan lost their last six wickets for 35 runs in 50 minutes.

Set to get only 97 for victory, the West Indies were put well on their way by Rohan Kanhai, who hit 52 in 73 minutes with six fours.

Kanhai and Sobers, the West Indian opening pair, put on 39 runs before Sobers put back an easy return to Devereaux to give Glamorgan their first wicket.

At 47, Woolley, at silly mid-on, dived to his right to hold a catch from Asquith, and two runs later an equally good catch at backward short leg by Watkins accounted for West. At tea the West Indies were 58 for three.

LARGE CROWD

The crowd was so big that the gates had to be closed during the afternoon.

Jim McCann, the Glamorgan off break bowler, who took six wickets for 50 runs in the West Indies first innings, dismissed Asquith and Everard. Woolley, who hit 52 in 73 minutes with six fours, was the only batsman to survive.

Earlier today the West Indies' last wicket pair, Wesley Hall and Tom Dewdney, had added 82 valuable runs to take the first innings total to 119, only 10 behind Glamorgan.

The rest of the runs were hit off four overs from McCann.

World Cup Rugby League Carnival

Sydney, June 10. More than enough tickets have already been sold to cover the full cost of staging the World Cup Rugby League Carnival.

The Australian Board of Control learned from its secretary, Mr. H.R. Matthews, that tickets already sold in Brisbane and Sydney represented £24,000.

The cost of the carnival is estimated at £23,000.

The board decided not to permit direct television of World Cup games.

But it agreed that films for telecasts on television after the close of play could be made.

All channels will be permitted to arrange for telecasts from the Brisbane fixtures (Australia v. New Zealand next Saturday, France v. New Zealand next Monday).

The only consideration asked by the board is one copy of such films for the board's use.

The board decided with regard to the Cup matches in Sydney that any film company desiring to take films for sale for telecasting should attend a conference between the representatives of the New South Wales Rugby League and the ground authority, the Sydney Cricket Ground Trust.—China Mail Special.

COUNTY CRICKET

TONY LOCK TAKES SEVEN NOTTS WICKETS FOR 49

London, June 10.

Tony Lock, Surrey's left-arm spinner, took seven Nottinghamshire wickets for 49, helping to dismiss them for 125 in their first innings.

This was well short of Surrey's 303 for four declared, in which Peter May, 83, and David Fletcher, 53 not out, shared in a fourth wicket stand of 103 in an hour.

May now needs 40 runs for his 1,000 this season.

Nottinghamshire, following on 178 behind, were again in trouble, losing four wickets for 39 before the close.

Dennis Brookes (135) and Desmond Bealick (50 not out) took Nottinghamshire from their overnight 198 for two to 227 for two declared, making their partnership worth 117.

Vince Broderick then captured five Leicestershire wickets for 29 in a total of 115 to give Nottingham four points.

DERBY LOSE POINTS.

Khalid "Bilal" Abdullah, Warwickshire's Pakistani all rounder, hit 53 to help his side rob Derbyshire, County Championship leaders, of four points at Edgbaston. But Warwickshire's 230 was scored too slowly to give them bonus points.

Yorkshire (Johnny Wardle four for 43) dismissed Lancashire for 118 to give them a first innings lead of 40 in the "Roses" match at Manchester, but themselves lost four for 87 before the close.

Worcestershire took bonus points, having scored 3,066 runs per over, whereas Essex had taken almost all day to make 100 at 1.97 runs per over on Saturday.

AT CLOSE OF PLAY...

At Taunton: Somerset 207 (Alderson 52, Smith six for 59), Gloucestershire 234 for three (Knightley-Smith 55, Gravney 50 not out).

At Birmingham: Derbyshire 100 and 91 for three, Warwickshire 230 (Abdullah 53).

At Leeds: Middlesex 375 for six declared, Sussex 299 for nine (Smith 149, Suttle 50).

At Cambridge: Free Foresters 206 for nine declared, Cambridge University 20 for 50 wicket, Rains stopped play.

At Manchester: Yorkshire 153 and 84 for four, Lancashire 113.

At Northampton: Northamptonshire 277 for two declared, Northampton 234 for three (P. Richardson 60, D. Richardson 115, Bailey five for 85).

At Southampton: Hampshire 343 for six declared, Kent 234 for four (Pheby 50, Pretlove 55, Leary 63 not out).—Reuter.

TONY TRABERT Says

OPEN TENNIS TOURNAMENTS MUST COME

San Francisco.

Tony Trabert, former National Singles Champion who turned professional, believes tennis will have to legalise the open tournament if it expects to come out of the doldrums.

"The game is dwindling in popularity," Trabert asserted while relaxing at a local hotel. "The kids are going in for other sports like basketball and golf. They don't have the same interest in tennis any more."

But Trabert, who was beaten by Pancho Gonzalez last year after turning professional and jumping with him on Jack Kramer's team, feels that the game could make a comeback if amateurs battled the play-for-pay group in the same tournaments.

"Look how the public follows open golf," Tony said. "The same thing could happen in tennis—with the professionals getting the money and the amateurs the cups."

Trabert now is happy working as a full time salesman for a large printing firm and part time on the courts. He claims he is through with the tour and recently turned down a high offer by Kramer to go on a tour through South America.

"I do not have the time," Trabert said. "I want to stay with my business because I'm a married man now with a wife and a nine-month-old boy to support."

BRIEF TOURNAMENT

But he is not averse to entering such small professional affairs as the other week's brief tournament at the Cow Palace. Although he only had been out on the courts twice in the previous 30 days, he blasted Ken Rosewall, 6-1, 6-3, in first round play to get close to the $1,000 prize. But Gonzalez downed Trabert in 50 minutes the following night, 6-4, 6-4.

"These short tournaments are good," Trabert grinned. "Here I am in town on business for my company and I get a chance to make some extra cash."

As 1955 drew to a close, Trabert resigned over American tour as his "Big Guy." He won 10 out of 20 tournaments that year, including the national crown, and rated as the class of Uncle Sam's outclassed Davis Cup team.

Then Kramer waved approximately $75,000 worth of long green under the tree-lined road and Tony, after some consideration, signed on to take his lumps from Pancho on their road show.

He doesn't regret the choice. "I got some security out of the tour and an all set," he said. "Neither do I miss amateur tennis. We'll get the Davis Cup back sooner than some people think," Tony added. "I see that 'Low Head' is getting knocked off a lot this year."

In the meantime, there is another professional tournament listed for this July at Forest Hills and Trabert hopes that company business calls him back there at about the same time. Want to bet it won't?

GREATEST PLAYER

The greatest player of the last quarter century was Don Budge, the red-headed star of the pre-World War II era. The statement is made by another very fine tennis player, Jack Kramer—a man who has made more money out of tennis than any man in history.

Kramer, the globe-trotting promoter, picked a "top ten" that went like this:

1. Budge; 2. Ellsworth Vines; 3. Pancho Gonzalez; 4. Bill Tilden; 5. Fred Perry; 6. Bobby Riggs; 7. Jack Crawford; 8. Pancho Segura; 9. Ted Schroeder; 10. Frank Schenker.

"I named Budge because he had the best all-around game ever displayed on a court," said Kramer, who refused to say just where he thinks he should rate himself in the top 10.

"Vines was the most brilliant and Gonzalez has the greatest potential of all."

Kramer couldn't make up his mind on who had the best service.

SPECTACULAR SHOW

But it was Budge who was the colour lad of the tennis world when he unseated the great Vines on a short US tour in 1933. This one opened in Madison Square Garden, New York, before 16,725 fans, who paid $47,120 to see the spectacular show. On the tour Budge won 22 matches, Vines 17. From there on, as long as he played regularly, no one could touch the red-head.

Kramer, incidentally, points out that the tours in those days of less than 20 years ago were a minute thing compared with his groups' wandering the last couple of years.

"While amateur tennis brings a top-notch game to only half a dozen cities in the world," says Jack, "our touring professional troupe played in 185 cities on five continents in the last 14 months. That's really bringing the best in tennis to the people."—United Press.

Tigers Again Beat Yankees

New York, June 10.

The Detroit Tigers, who seem to have dedicated the season to making life miserable for the New York Yankees, were at their favourite form of amusement again today when they walloped the World Champions 9-4 with a barrage of four home runs.

Dick Gernier's two homers and two-run double sparked the Boston Red Sox to an 11-4 victory over Kansas City as in the only other day game.

Charley Maxwell, knocked in five runs with two homers, while Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn also homered to lead the Detroit attack on three pitchers.

It was the Tigers' sixth win over the Yankees this season and helped scratch the idle Chicago White Sox American League lead to five games.

Mickey Mantle hit his 15th homer of the campaign and Hank Bauer homered for the Yankees. Frank Lary, who beat the Yankees five times last season, gained credit for this win although Al Aber finished. Bob Turley suffered his second defeat compared to one victory.

Willard Nixon yielded 10 hits but went the distance for the Red Sox with the aid of a 13-hit attack that included five doubles. Alex Kellner suffered his fourth defeat against two wins.

Lawn Bowls Open Championships Start This Evening

By "TOUCHER"

The Colony Lawn Bowls Championships start this afternoon, appropriately with their oldest and most popular event—the Open Singles. Dating as far back as 1909, the Open Singles event has already been competed for in 38 seasons. This year not only this but also all the other events will probably attract special interest as the Championships will be the last before the next Empire Games which will be held at Cardiff in July, 1957.

The current League and Championships may provide bowlers the opportunity of catching the eye of the Committee that will be responsible for selecting Hongkong's next Empire Games lawn bowls team. The Singles event has this year attracted the more than satisfactory number of 108 entries, as compared to 102 last year.

Not entered are three ex-champions in B. W. Bradbury, A. H. Seemin and M. N. Rakusen.

NINE EX-CHAMPIONS

There will, however, be no dearth of former champions in this year's competition. C. A. Coelho, the holder, leads the array that includes R. F. Luz, A. E. Coates, J. A. Luz, J. S. Landolt, M. B. Hassan, C. C. Pereira, W. Hong Sling and Eric Liddell.

Since 1914 the title has never been won by the same bowler two years running and with a large crop of extremely promising young bowlers taking part this year, a forecast of the eventual winner is almost an impossible task.

One prediction, however, can be safely made—it is more likely than not that the title will change hands.

Judging on their form in the League matches played so far this year, the following will probably start as top favourites—R. F. Luz, J. A. Luz, and C. C. Pereira of Recreio, and C. C. Pereira of Recreio.

Eric Liddell of KBGC, and W. Hong Sling of KBGC. Strong competition is expected from C. C. Ma, W. C. Young and M. Q. Wong of CCC, Brian Douglas of T.C. S. Bucks and A. H. Abbas of IRC and C. R. Rosset, last year's Knockout Singles Champion.

CLARIFICATION WANTED

Before the commencement of the Championships, and particularly the Singles Championships, there is one point that a few bowlers would like to have clarified.

It was stated at the last Annual General Meeting of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association, that the Association will this year enforce Rule 11 (3) (b) of the IBB rules which states that to ensure accuracy of bias and visibility of stamp all bowls shall be retested and restamped every tenth year.

This rule, I understand, was relaxed in the case of League matches to allow for mutual agreement.

But the position in the case of Open Championships matches needs to be specially mentioned. Rule (1) in the Duties of Marker states that the marker shall, before play commences, examine all bowls for the imprint of the IBB stamp, such imprint to be clearly visible.

It seems to me that competing bowlers have no say whatever regarding the admissibility of their own or their opponents' bowls and that the decision will rest solely with the umpire in championship matches. In view of the fact that some very ancient woods have been seen being used in League matches it will save a great deal of uncertainty if a definite statement is made by the Association on this ruling.

TODAY

The following is today's programme of first round Singles matches, all starting at 5.30 p.m., with name of players who are expected to win mentioned first.

At KCCC—R. G. Laurel (PRC) v. J. R. Wall (HKPSA), A. Eastman (KBGC) v. A. A. Lopes (Recreio), P. Hughes (KBGC) v. R. Basu (CCC).

East German Wins Two Miles Race At British Games

London, June 10. Klaus Richtzenhain, silver medalist for East Germany in the 1500 metres at the last Olympics, won the two miles international event at the two-day British Games which were concluded here this afternoon.

The tall East German had little opposition and on a slow track in cold, wet weather he returned the slow time of 8 mins. 54 seconds to win easily from Bert Pattison of Great Britain.

The foreign challenge was not great and the 25,000 holiday-makers who braved the cold, wet weather saw few outstanding performances.

Among these were the breaking by Peter Cullen of his own British Javelin record with 228 feet 6 inches, the quarter mile victory of Britain's Olympic runner John Salisbury in 48.5 seconds, and an exciting 3,000 metres steeplechase duel in which Olympic steeplechaser Eric Shirley, beat John Disley in 8 minutes 59.4 seconds.—Reuter.

Miss Suggs Ties Women's Course Record Of 68

Pittsburgh, June 10. Fast-closing Louise Suggs fired a torrid two under men's par 68 in the final round to capture the 72-hole Ladies PGA Championship at Churchill Valley Country Club with a 285 total.

Miss Suggs, down three strokes to early leader Wm Smith going into the final round, tied a women's course record of 68, which Wm had set on the first day of the tournament. The winner's 31 on the creek-dotted back nine also was a new low as she birdied the 11th, 15th and 17th holes.

The 33-year-old Miss Suggs closed her winning round for the $1,510 top money by rolling home a 14-foot putt for a par four on the final green.

The 20-year-old Wm finished three strokes back with a 74 that gave her a 289 total and second place money of $928. Tied for third were the defending LPGA titlist, Marlene Bauer Hagee, and Beverly Hanson, both with 290s.—United Press.
